Sony is #1 in Interchangeable Lens Mirrorless for First Time Since 2015

COMMENT

While Sony likes to mention to the media that it is the #1 interchangeable lens mirrorless (ILM) brand globally, its statistics often refer specifically to full-frame. Across all ILM cameras, Canon and Olympus have been Japan's top ILM brands over the last decade, but Sony has regained top position.

Last year Fujifilm announced a firmware update that would bring pixel-shift multi-shot to the GFX100, allowing it to jump from 100-megapixel photos to capturing whopping 400-megapixel photos. In this 12-minute video, ZY Productions shows exactly what that looks like.

Camera Suggestions

“I would appreciate general feedback on new gear to buy. I need to buy a new camera and I don't know which one to choose (mirrorless FF like a7 or R6..)”

Cesar's Take

- Most cameras from the last 2-3 years are amazing
- Important questions:
  - Usage? video?
  - Previous gear? (especially lenses)
  - What do close friends shoot with?
  - Budget?

Cesar's Take

- Worth it
  - Mirrorless x DSLR “hammer”
  - Full-frame x APS-C x MFT
- Worthless
  - Megapixels

Budget Matters

- 1- Lens(es)
- 2- Camera body

Great Camera body
Lenses – “holy trinity”?

Good lenses are more important to good photographs than a top camera body!
