2024 Activities

We Want...

Which of these activities would you be interested in joining?

You Said It

"The idea of extending the photowalk idea to a (few days) trip has potential!"

"Post processing is one skill that I need to improve. The use of Lightroom besides the "auto" bottom and few beginners' tricks. Just also where to know where is the point to stop post processing a picture"

"Photo walks are often very "static". Propose exercises for people who don't want to photograph models and want to learn new techniques."

"Locations a bit away from the city, like the lake, Uetliberg, ..."

Cesar Martins
 Chaya Photo

We are a very heterogenic group, completely different individuals from all over the globe, but all passionate about being portrayed and/or registering our reality and the world around us through images.

Even this common passion is as distinct as it gets and ranges from casual portraits to a special photographic endeavor for capturing the Milky Way during a multiple-day hike to the mountains. Even in these differences there is a common ground: the images we bring back home are simply stunning.

Most of us were connected through Meetup Groups and, as the pandemic limited our liberty to get together to photograph, we diverted our energy to keep creating and have been online fun, even after formal Meetups were all but temporarily postponed.

The following pages try to show a little of what we lived during 2020 by introducing some of the photographers, telling a little about us, and showing how the world was portrayed through the eyes and creativity of each of us.

Crisis is a time of rebuilding and growing, and it indeed brings opportunities. Not only that, even during chaos there is room for fun, creativity and developing new connections.

Despite being a portrait lover, 2020 found me shooting landscapes together with the remarkable beauty of Switzerland, get me to discover about the joy of the world around me through photos and experimental film.

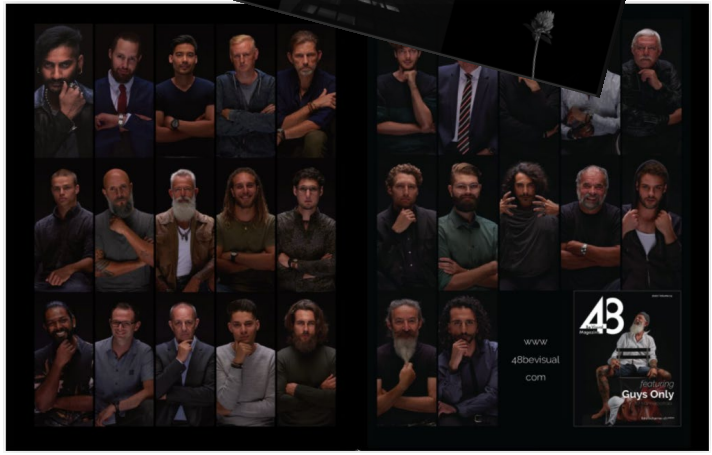

It's true, I did not vacation as much as I wanted in 2020, but I got George Lakota to help me take the portrait of a true star, which was the highlight of the year!
